

"What was she supposed to do? Get gassed every day she had to work? I'm surprised no one else got angrier before her. Not that it's easy to face down the cops or border patrol like that. But just how cruel and unsafe and humiliating it all must have been, I'm just surprised it even happened. Which I know I shouldn't be, but these are toxic chemicals we're talking about! There's something about it that makes me think of Stonewall. That first rock she threw, that first brick at the cops that started the riots. We need to know about these fierce Latinas."
